Why cities should stop building museums and focus on festivals

Last year the Institute of Museum and Library Services offered a catchy statistic: the United States has more museums than all the Starbucks and McDonald's combined.

It's easy to understand why cities will leap at the opportunity to invest in new structures: "Starchitect"-designed buildings, from the Santiago Calatrava-designed Milwaukee Art Museum to Brooklyn's undulating Barclays Center, could add an iconic image to the cityscape and garner positive media buzz.

Museums of Cities and Urban Futures: new approaches to urban planning and the opportunities for museums of cities

by Duncan Grewcock

Duncan Grewcock is a Ph.D. research student at the UCL Centre for Sustainable Heritage, University College London, where he is researching urban museums and human geographies. Prior to his doctoral research he was a museum and heritage consultant with LOROS Cultural Resources.

'Past, Present, Future: The rational divisions of the rational life. And always underneath, in dreams, in reflections, in the moment of hesitation on a busy street, the hunch that life is not rational, not divided. That the mirrored compartments could break.'

(Winterman 1997, p. 20)

Uncertainty and complexity

Museums of cities face a greater set of challenges than any other kind of museum in the world today. Given the concentration of energy and activity within cities and the extent of their impact and influence, museums are affected by cities to some degree or another. The future of museums is inextricably linked to the future of cities.

To a significant extent, change defines the city, whether it be social, physical, technological, economic, cultural, environmental or political. If cities are the 'defining artefact of civilization' as is often claimed, then museums of cities have an

NINGBO URBAN EXHIBITION CENTER CHINESISCHER BÄNDERTANZ

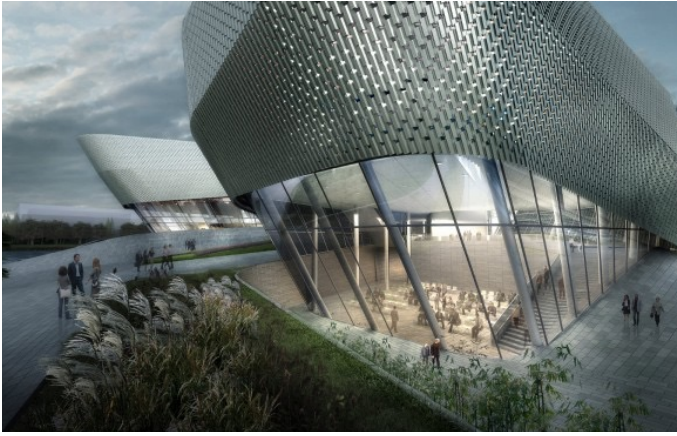

Die Typologie des Stadtplanungszentrums kann man vor allem im Kontext Chinas verstehen. Infolge des rasant steigenden Wachstums in vielen chinesischen Städten, sehen sich Stadtverwaltungen veranlasst ihre Stadtplanung und Strategien zur Stadtentwicklung einer breiten Öffentlichkeit zu vermitteln. Das urbane Konzept und der architektonische Entwurf entsprechen dieser Intention. Die Grenzen zwischen öffentlichem und privatem Raum verlaufen fließend, wobei Besucher die seltene Möglichkeit bekommen einen Blick hinter die Kulissen ihrer Stadt zu werfen. Ziel ist vor allem einen gut zugänglichen und attraktiven öffentlichen Raum zu schaffen, welcher die Kommunikation zwischen den verschiedenen Akteuren der Stadt ermöglicht

WAN Future Project Civic Building 2015 Winner Announced

Adrian Smith + Gordon Gill Architecture's awarded first place with their Istanbul Cultural Center

It is a delight to deliver first prize for the WAN Future Project Civic Building Award 2015 to Adrian Smith + Gordon Gill Architecture for their well considered and developed Istanbul Cultural Center – Congratulations!

The winner was chosen from six shortlisted projects, selected by our jury panel. This year's panel included: Andrew Costa, Director for Ryder Architecture, Ian Bogle, Director at Bogle Architects, and Marta Pozo, Director at MVRD Asia.

After a very successful judging session, the panel came to the conclusion that Adrian Smith + Gordon Gill Architecture's Istanbul Cultural Center, would take first place because of its complexity. Set in the heart of modern Istanbul, with the central station of the Metro network, a major tourist and
